You Have Flexible Hours -You have the ability to work full or part time in the convenience of your home and adjust your work agenda to match your lifestyle! Work the hours you want. with no clock to punch!

You Are Your Own Boss - As you can work at your own time and pace, there is no one looking over your shoulders telling you what to do or how to do it.

You Utilize Your Abilities -There is a wide variety of assembly work available. With this opportunity you have the freedom to choose the type of work you enjoy doing the most, that you have fun when doing it.

Use the talents and skills that you are most relaxed with. And here is the best advantage, you get paid while learning and enjoying new skills.

Every year ever-increasing millions of Americans choose to work and live in the same place having their own home-based businesses.

Some home-based businesses start out by accident. . They begin as weekend activities in recreation rooms and later turn into full-time ventures after owners see how profitable or enjoyable they are. They become fascinated to the advantages of high profit, low risk, low overhead home-based businesses can offer.

Naturally, there are also shortcomings. Children and door-to-door deliverymen can interrupt work in progress. It may also be difficult to hire others to help, who might be offended by working at a kitchen table.

Also, there are temptations to do household chores rather than to apply yourself to business errands.

On the other hand there are offsetting compensations for working at home including no commuting time. Also, business expenses like gasoline, car maintenance are reduced.

The disadvantages of working at home however, can be diminished with the application of self-discipline.

A Note About These Companies

Most assembly companies are small family art and craft businesses which are accomplished from their own homes.

These small companies want to attract a serious and responsible assembler who is willing to put their individual talents to work. Also, they must be committed, with enough self-discipline, to work independently without supervision as an independent contractor.

Some of them require that you, as a show of faith, pay for a so-called starter kit which, will include enough materials to get you started, along with a sample of the finished product.

This fee will cover shipping, packaging, inspection and creating and maintaining your file. In this manner you will receive the suitable materials for the job and be able to follow the top rate quality control guidelines that understandable must be met, in order for them to be able to put the product up for sale.

Nearly all of these businesses will include a telephone number on the advertising material they send to you and provide you with a method of help.

Most of them will also offer a money back guarantee or use the fee towards purchase of materials.

In order for these companies to cut costs and compete with the larger markets, they ask that you send in, a self-addressed, stamped envelope when requesting more information.

Many of these individuals have been in business for many years and are members of their local Chamber of Commerce and/or the Better Business Bureau.

You should make your own evaluation of each firm's reputation and check them out first.

Any disputes that may arise are totally between you and the businesses you select.

Quiet naturally, any income opportunity for service related work include some possible risk factors. We assume absolutely no responsibility for the actions of the persons that are offering these opportunities. We have no knowledge of any facts which would cause us to believe these people are not reputable. There offers are provided in this directory for information purposes solely.

Ideas For Making Money From Home By Providing Personal & Business Services

Americans spend the chief portion of their day engaged in job-related tasks and responsibilities.

In many of today's families, both parents are working to bring in family income. Many necessary tasks responsibilities leaving little time to fulfill personal needs such as making dinner, buying groceries, cleaning the yard and parts of the house, dropping and picking up children, keeping in shape.

Many parents and single people today are now paying outside businesses for their personal services. All size companies are relying new firms and independent contractors for handling many of their service needs.

Downsizing and increased employee benefits and insurance expenditures have made it much more cost effective for companies to pay for business services that were once performed in-house.

These modern realities have created an outstanding opportunity for anyone with marketable skills and entrepreneurial drive to start a profitable home-based business offering personal or business services.
